

RELIGIOUS STUDIES WORKSHOP SERIES

I. PRESENTATION SKILLS

Alisha Saikia

In this workshop, we will discuss various ways to prepare an effective presentation of your research paper/thesis and to deliver it efficiently. This workshop will provide you with an opportunity to deliberate on the limitations of preparing and presenting an adept paper in a limited amount of time, enable you to overcome that impediment, and enhance your presentation skills.

Alisha Saikia is a Doctoral Assistant (2022–2025) in Religious Studies, funded through a scholarship of the Vienna Doctoral School of Theology and Research on Religion (VDTR). She holds a B.A. in Sociology (2010), an M.A. in East Asian Studies (2012), and an M.Phil. in Japanese Studies (2014), all from the University of Delhi, India. She also holds an M.A. in Religious Studies (2018) from the University of Tsukuba, Japan. Her current research project is on studying dolls from a Religious Studies perspective where she explores the field of doll collecting and doll making from the lenses of neo-animism, healing, and subjective myth.
